SUNNY, POLICE DOG, IS DEAD

HE Police Department lost one of its most faithful four footed miss their canine friend. The police of the 125th street police station were extremely fond of Sunny because of his intelligent ways. While successful.

Sunny was an unusual dog .n many ways. His entrance into the Police Department was the most unusual incident in his career. It seems that a friend of Policeman Primont's, deciding to go to Europe, found that he could not take Sunny along with him. He was puz-zled as to what to do with the dog, when he found a way out of the dilem-ma by presenting Sunny to Primont.

Subsequently Primont was puzzled as to how he could take are of the dog. Then Sunny provided the solution by making known the fact that he wished to be a policeman. He accompanied Primoat to the police station, lined up before the desk with the other policemen and showed by his actions that he was unusually intelligent. From the very first he caught on to the regular routine. One of his favorite tricks was performed immediately after the rollcall, when he faced about with the policemen and marched out of the house at Primont's side. He accompanied that officer to his post and entered into the police work with ardor and faithfulness. Besides being proficient at regulating traffic at crossings, especially in the vicinity of public schols, Sunny was equally efficient in putting a damper on street, fights. Although he mass even known to bite any one, his trick was to assume a threatening posture, as if he seeking inspiration but by poets seeking inspiration but by capitalists planning tremendous financial easume a threatening posture, as if he really intended to sink his sharp teeth rest, comfort and solace. in the leg of a combatant. If this trick falled to secure the desired result Sunny would make a rush at the fighters, barking loudly to attract their attention. This effort generally met with arousing and driving the occupants of boxes and the packing. The seven comburning buildings out into safety by cob and wooden pipe factories gave employment in 1913 to 323 men and youths his loud barking and excited actions.
